The forms and instructions to preregister are on the club website at <https://n6krv.org/exam-info/> . The exam fee is $10 and there are waivers available as detailed on the webpage. The Federal Communications Commission also has a fee and, in most cases, it is $35 and is not generally waived. We do not collect the FCC fee; they will provide payment directions after they receive and process your paperwork.

If you plan to take the Amateur Extra examination, please be aware a new question pool took effect July 1, 2024. You can find the question pools on our website or at <http://www.ncvec.org/> .

CORRESPONDENCE

A VISIT TO HAVILAH, NOV. 15th 1866.

Editor Delta: --- Get right down on your marrow bones and thank the Lord that you live in the Tulare Valley and not in this God-forsaken hole. Can't help it: The truth must be told. The new county of Kern, judging by its metropolis is in a bad way. "Dullness reigns supreme." Those who have mills and are working them are making money, but the money is no sooner out of the pans than it is on its way to San Francisco, and that is the last we see of it. Scarcely a man who is a permanent resident here, and whose interest outside of the mines here has any capital employed in productive operations, and the result is that all the proceeds go out of the county, and money is actually scarce. New discoveries are being made continually, but if they are of any real value, they are snapped up 1n a giffy by some San Francisco cormorant for a mess of pottage. Our Grand Jury has just been in session, and a great Jury it was. What would your people think of passing over murder, robbery, assaults with deadly weapons and other crimes because their prosecution would be expensive? Such seems to have been the course here, and if continued the result will be a recourse to lynch law. The Courier does not seem to be in a flourishing condition. There is a schism in the directory and the signs are that a change or a premature death will be the fate of the Courier.

(Please Note: We changed NOTHING in this article, it was copied exactly as printed in the Visalia Delta Nov. 28, 1866. Jayne, KK6JPZ, and I went to the Local History room at the Beale Library and were allowed to make copies of anything they had on Havilah in their files in the back room filing cabinets -- WITHOUT CHARGE, due to the loss of our Court House museum. We have been given permission from them to research and copy anything that we may need to help restore our history. I copied this one “for fun”, so we could run it in our newsletter.) ---- Al Price, N6ALP

Coming soon to a library near you.....

So here I am, a member of the Peter Lebeck Chapter #1866 of E Clampus Vitus, and have been told that the Chapter chose their name because there was so little known about Peter Lebeck, there wouldn't be as much to complain about or defend if we named it for someone of whom much was known, less controversy. OK, so being an amateur historian, here I go researching who Peter Lebeck was. What did I find? About 21 different stories --- OK, so I put them into a PowerPoint program.

While entering the information, I stumble upon the name of the leader of one of the groups Lebeck was supposed to have belonged to; Jean Baptiste Charbonneau. OK, who was this Charbonneau fella'? Come to find out he was the son of the well-known Indian maiden (oops – Native American lady) we all know as “Sacajawea” from the Lewis and Clark Expedition, 1804 – 1806.

Well now, that's another research project --- what do we know about Sacajawea? Another, “oops” – What we know really turns out to be “dime novel stuff” like in the throwaway paperback stories about Buffalo Bill and Wild Bill Hickok! In true research, you can't just take one book, or one person's opinion as fact! It involves exhaustive searches for anything and just about everything ever written about that person --- then developing a much truer picture of the person (place or thing).

What do we know about Sacajawea? Well, first we know that her name wasn't really Sacajawea. She was a Shoshone Indian who was stolen by the Hidatsa – Mandan Indians as a child, and was renamed Sacajawea, or Sacagawea, Sakakawea, Sakargarwea, Sacargamea, Sacagaewa, Sacargarwea or Sacargarmea (all spellings from one time or another).

There was a trapper, mountain man, Toussaint Charbonneau, who was married to an Indian woman and lived with the Hidatsa and Mandan Indians in the Salmon River area below the Rocky Mountains in the area now called Idaho. Somehow, either by barter, gambling, etc., Charbonneau ended up with 12 year old Sacajawea

ADDITIONAL RESEARCH ON PETER LEBECK, NO WAIT, THE RESEARCH WAS ON JEAN-BAPTISTE CHARBONNEAU --- NO WAIT -----

as his second wife (can you say “Polygamy”?) Several months later, Meriweather Lewis (Pres. Thomas Jefferson’s personal secretary) and William Clark (Meriweathers’ friend, neighbor, and prior superior officer in the military) were chosen to travel from the northern plains through the Rocky Mountains to the Pacific Ocean and make detailed maps and descriptions of what they found. And to prove or disprove that there was or was not a waterway route from the Atlantic to the Pacific Ocean. Jefferson was particularly interested in the area the other side of the Rockies, which were not part of the Louisiana Purchase.

Sacajawea (meaning “Bird Woman” in Hidatsa) had her baby, Jean Baptiste Charbonneau, in February 1804, then the Lewis and Clark, or the “Corps of Discovery”, as it was commonly called, enlisted her husband, Toussaint Charbonneau as a guide, taking Sacajawea along as an interpreter, and the young mother taking her baby along with them started off on the expedition from the Indian Village in the Rocky Mountain area in May 1804.

During the entire journey, Lewis and Clark, along with many of the other members of the Expedition kept daily journals --- and here is where history changes!

Almost 100 years later, Eva Dye, head of the Women’s, Suffragette Association in Oregon (where the Lewis and Clark expedition ended) published “The Conquest: The True Story of Lewis and Clark”, and, in arguing for the not-yet-granted-right to vote to women, after reviewing the published journals of both Meriweather Lewis and William Clark, made Sacajawea appear more, even most, heroic as the woman who saved the whole expedition from death, starvation, and ruin in her book! This book sold well, her story spread, and Sacajawea became an American historical superwoman! Agreed, she was extremely helpful to the expedition, but there was a lot more drama, and truth-stretching about her in “The Conquest”.

Several Myths:

- She was an official guide for the expedition. False, her husband was, but he turned out to be about as useless as Fremont, who was jokingly given the nickname of “Pathfinder”, but Toussaint was an excellent cook, so that’s what he did for the rest of the expedition. Sacajawea knew quite a bit about some of the area, and could speak with the Shoshone Indians they met along the way to get needed food supplies and horses. Toussaint also spoke French, Hidatsa, & Mandan so he helped to interpret. Guess what? Not all Shoshone dialects are the same, but close enough.
- The book said, “She found her brother, Cameahwait, was the Chief, so it was relatively easy for her to get food and horses for the expedition”. In fact, the diaries said, “We were lucky that she came upon some distant relatives who helped us obtain food and horses”.
- The book said, “When the boat she was on capsized, she was able to save some of its cargo, important documents and supplies, along with her son, and served as a symbol of peace.” The diaries said, “She was very helpful with her knowledge of plants used for food and medicine, and helped us to be treated with less suspicion when the men of the tribes we came upon saw an Indian woman and child traveling with us.”

Truths:

- During the trip, Clark nicknamed Jean Baptiste “Pomp” or “Pompey”, and after the trip offered to let Pomp live with him and get a better education. But, as a result of his service on the trip, Toussaint Charbonneau received 320 acres of land and a cash payment of $500.33 --- Sacajawea received nothing. Farming didn’t work out, so in 1811, Toussaint went back to fur trading, and they allowed Jean Baptiste to go to live with his Godfather, William Clark, to be educated. In August 1812, Sacajawea gave birth to a daughter (Lisette or Lizette) but became extremely ill (possibly typhoid fever), and at the age of only 25, died Dec. 22, 1812. Clark also took in Lizette to see to her education.
- In addition to numerous memorials to Sacajawea throughout the United States, the U.S. Mint honored her with a dollar coin, to replace the Susan B. Anthony dollar from 2000 to 2008, and breaking with tradition, showed her full-faced, instead of the traditional side view profile, with Jean Baptiste Charbonneau pictured as the baby on her back. The only baby ever on a U.S. Coin. (The artist, Glenna Goodacre, used a modern-day Shoshone student as her model).

The Ridge Rally on December 7 is seeking amateur radio operators to provide safety communications for the rally race. This is a fun event to watch! I'm Paula Gibeault, N6OQQ, the rally's Chief of Communications.

The radio net is responsible for tracking the rally cars as they race down closed sections of road ("stages") at one minute intervals. Hams are placed at intersecting roads and trails. If the rally cars get out of order, the hams report this. Each stage runs on a 2m simplex frequency, with the Communications Captain in a central location. Net Control has access to emergency services. Mobile rigs are best but handie talkies are fine as well.

Rally cars are sedans with strengthened suspensions, roll cages and fire systems. Each car has a driver and "co-driver" (navigator). Teams try to get the fastest times on all the stages, similar to a time trial.

The comm teams meet in several locations then head to the stages. Sequoia ARG members could meet on 178 at the Kelso Valley turnoff (heading to Piute Mountain). The stages run multiple times and finish in the early evening. Every volunteer gets a T-shirt and a lunch is delivered to them midday.

We hold two Zoom training sessions the week before the rally to go over procedures and answer questions, so that everyone is ready to go on the day of the rally. You can attend either or both.

If you have any questions, please feel free to ask them! My contact information is below.

If you're ready to volunteer, go to www.rallydata2.com and sign up (be sure to click on Ridge Rally first). You'll create a password to use any time you log in. You should receive a welcome letter email within an hour - if not, please check your spam folder and mark as "not spam" any email from rallyinfo@rallydata2.com since a lot of information will be sent from that email.

Thank you for your interest, hope you can join us!
